BRAND & MODEL STORY

WHY THIS BOAT

Highfield

Built Stronger. Designed to Go Further.

Highfield exists for one simple reason: to build RIBs that are tougher, lighter, and more capable than anything else on the water.

Founded in 2011, Highfield set out to challenge the conventions of inflatable boat design by doing something few manufacturers were willing to commit to fully — building every hull in aluminium. That decision has shaped the brand's identity ever since and has propelled Highfield to become the world's number one manufacturer of aluminium hulled Rigid Inflatable Boats

Australian DNA. Global Execution.

Highfield's design heritage can be traced directly to Australia, where aluminium RIBs were developed to survive some of the harshest marine environments in the world, including the Great Barrier Reef. The early designs were shaped by real world commercial and offshore demands — prioritising strength, weight efficiency, and predictable handling in difficult conditions.

This Australian expertise was combined with European direction and Chinese manufacturing scale, resulting in a fully integrated, purpose built production facility operated under European management. Unlike many competitors, Highfield designs, cuts, welds, coats and assembles its boats in house ensuring quality control from start to finish.

Aluminium as a Advantage

At the heart of every Highfield is a marine grade aluminium hull— not just lighter, but fundamentally stronger than traditional GRP alternatives. Aluminium allows Highfield to build boats that are over engineered by intent, capable of withstanding impacts, abrasion, beach landings, and hard commercial use without compromise.

These hulls are powder coated in enclosed facilities reducing environmental impact and ensuring long term durability. Aluminium's recyclability also plays a key role in Highfield's sustainability approach, making the boats stronger at birth and cleaner over their full life cycle.

Designed for Real Conditions

Highfield does not design boats for calm marinas or protected waters alone. Their RIBs are built to be dry riding, stable, and confidence inspiring even when conditions deteriorate. The combination of deep vee aluminium hulls and premium inflatable tubes delivers balance, grip, and predictable handling across a wide range of sea states.

This is why Highfield boats are trusted not just by private owners, but by professional users — including race organisers, safety crews, and commercial operators who depend on reliability rather than comfort marketing.

Proven on the World Stage

Highfield's credibility has been forged not through claims, but through deployment at the highest levels of international sailing and boating. The brand has supplied large support and safety fleets for events including the Vendée Globe, Route du Rhum, Extreme Sailing Series, TP52, ORC Championships, Pan Am Games, and the Invictus Games — often with fleets numbering up to 50 boats operating simultaneously.

These are environments where failure is not an option — and repeat selection says everything about performance and trust.

Highfield. Aluminium at its Best. Built to Endure. Designed to Explore.
